Aughrim,

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

IN THE PROTESTANT CHURCHYARD.

'A modern church stands in this burial-ground. The tombstones are not older than the eighteenth century; the oldest appear to be the following':—

'On a small headstone, south side':—

HERE LIES THE | BODY OF SHVESA | NNA BEGGLY WHO |
DYED THE 16TH OF | MARCH 1759.

IHS

'Headstone, east end':—

Pray for Barbara | FitzSimons who | Departed April |
The 6th 1779 The | Lord Be Mercifoul [sic] | to her
Soul Amen | Erected by N. F.

'On a table-tomb':—

Here Lieth the Body | of William Grrett [sic] who |
Departed this Life Novemb^r | the 20, 1778 (?) Aged 79
years. | This Stone was Erected by | his wife Margaret
Garrett | Also his wife Margaret Garrett | who died the 14th of Nov. 1812 | Aged 100 years.

'On a flat slab, at the west end':—

Beneath this stone are | Deposited the Remains of |
John Todd of Glanloug | ^hane who departed this | life
the 20th of Dec^r 1789 (?) | Aged 84 years. | This Stone
was Erec^d | by John Todd son of the | abovementioned
Io | hn. | Grateful Tribute to Memories.

IN THE OLD CHAPEL YARD.

'A handsome new chapel, on a different site, has replaced the old one, of which practically the west gable alone stands.

'The following inscription is copied from a flat slab, at the west end, and inside the ruins':—

I.H.S

Lord have mercy on the | soul of Martin Loughnan |
& his Posterity, he Dep^d this | Life Nov^r y^e 30th 1788
Age^d | 52 y^{rs} This stone was Erected | By his son
Walter Loughnan | as a gratefull Testimony | to his Father's Memory.

'On a flat slab, at the west end of the burial-ground':—

Lord be mercifull to the | soul of Fergus Dolan who |
Dep^d y^e life Aug^t y^e 7th 1784 | Aged 52 years. Erected by | his son Iⁿ Dolan for him & | Posterity.

Iniscaltra, alias Holy Island, St. Mary's Churchyard.

[From Mr. T. U. Sadleir.]

'Inside the ruins of St. Mary's Church there are the remains of an O'Brien (or Mac I Brien Ara) tomb, which was originally an altar-tomb, with a mural monument over it, shaped like a pediment.

'The inscription is all on the pediment portion, and very much mutilated; it is in two parts; the upper part is in five lines, on either side of an oval, bearing a coat-of-arms, viz.:—"A hand issuing from the dexter side, holding a sword erect; and three lions passant in pale."

'The left-hand side of this part of the inscription is read first, and then that on the right-hand side. As there are two versions of the reading—one by Mr. T. U. Sadleir, and the other by Professor R. A. S. Macalister—they are here shown for comparison':—

THE MAC I BRIEN ARA ALTAR-TOMB AND MURAL
MONUMENT IN ST. MARY'S CHURCH, ON INISCALTRA, OR HOLY ISLAND, CO. GALWAY.

[From photographs by Professor P. A. S. Macalister.]

'Owing to the battered condition of the slab, it is very difficult now to decipher the lettering, which is in Roman capitals, as will be seen in the accompanying illustration.

'The lower inscription runs':—

HERE LYE THE BODIES OF THE NOBLE KNIGHT S^r TERLAGH M^o I BRIEN ARA BAR
RONETT WHO DIED THE 28 OF MARCH ANNO D. 1626 AND HIS LADY ELYS BUTLER DAUGHTER TO THE RIGHT HONORABLE WALTER EARLE OF ORMOND WHO DIED THE X OF FEB: 1625. PRAY FOR THEIR SOVLES. MEMENTO MORI.

'These inscriptions appeared incomplete and incorrectly at p. 825, vol. vi of this JOURNAL.

'Sir Tirlagh's father was the Right Rev. Murtagh O'Brien (or Mac I Brian Ara), Chief of his Name, and Bishop of Killaloe, from 1570 to 1612, who died on the 30th April, 1618, and was buried at Castletown-Arra, Co. Tipperary.

'His mother, Slaney O'Brien, according to Mr. G. D. Burtchaell, Athlone Pursuivant of Arms, was a daughter of Dermot, 2nd Lord of Inchiquin.

'With the death of Sir Tirlagh without issue in 1626, the Baronetcy became extinct.

'It is not known why Sir Tirlagh and his wife chose to be buried at Iniscaltra, when the family burial-place was at Castletown-Arra, in the County Tipperary.

'Though his father became a Protestant Bishop, Sir Tirlagh appears by the inscription to have remained a Roman Catholic.'

The Menlough wayside Monument, Parish of Oranmore.

'In an article on the Antiquities of the Barony of Dunkellin by Miss L. Athy in the "Galway Archæological Journal," vol. viii, p. 160, mention is made of a square monument of loose stones, which stands by the side of the road leading from Menlough to Kilroghtar, and close to the former village. This class of monument is peculiar to the County Galway and northern County Clare.

'On that side of the monument, facing the road, is inserted a small slab, bearing the following inscription':—

PRAY FOR THE SOVL OF WILLIAM
CONNELL AND HIS WIFE CATHERINE
COYNE; AND THEIR SON EDMUND
O'CONNELL, AND HIS WIFE SARAH EHER; JOHN CONNELL AND HIS WIFE MARGARET FRANCIS 1693.

Dunferth Churchyard.

[From Miss Ellen Metcalfe.]

'On the opposite page is shown a rubbing by Miss Metcalfe of the arms on a small headstone, now (1904) placed in a mortuary chapel attached to the ruins of Dunferth Church. The arms are cut in relief, and the inscription is incised. The left bottom corner of the slab is broken off. The inscription reads':—

Here lies the Body of M^{rs}
Mary Dempsey Alias Ber-
mingham, Daugh^t to Maur:
Bermingham of Brohal Es^q
& wife to P^{er} Dempsey of Kil-murry, Gent., at whose expen^{ce}
(th)is monum^t was Erected in (me)mory of her. Obit 8^d
(of J)an Anno Dⁿⁱ 1719
()ery. Fecit.

'The O'Dempsey arms are: "A Lion rampant between two swords, points upwards."

'The Bermingham coat is: "Per pale indented."

'The crest, on a helmet, is a bird with its wings expanded.'

Kilteel Churchyard.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'Kilteel, in old documents, is written Killeale. A Commandery for the Knights Hospitallers was in existence here in the thirteenth century. The existing antiquities consist of a castle in good preservation, the socketed base and fragments of a mediæval cross, three isolated portions of the ruins of the commandery widely scattered, and the churchyard now enclosed by a wall.

'The shape of the old church can still be traced; it was long, narrow, and consisted of nave and chancel; a portion of the south wall, gapped where there were windows, is all that now stands; a piscina still exists in this wall.

'The burial-ground is not a large one; nearly all the tombstones are of granite, which makes their inscriptions very difficult to decipher; the following are a few of them.

'A square granite headstone in the chancel':—

HERE LYETH THE | BODY OF WILLIAM | PATRICKSON WHO |
DEPARTED THIS | LIFE JANUARY Y^r | 4, 1741 AGED 82 Y^{rs} |
HIS GRANDSON | JEREMIAH FINIMOR [Remainder buried.]

'On the little bridge a few perches to the north of the churchyard, there is a small granite tablet built into the wall facing down stream. The second line of the inscription is indecipherable; what can be made out is':—

CASTLE BRIGDE.

(? built in the year?)

1830.

'Like all the Commanderies of the Knights Hospitallers, this parish is dedicated to St. John the Baptist.

Whitechurch, alias Castlane Church.

[From Miss Wyndham-Quin.]

‘Inside the church :—

To the memory | of | the Rev^d Charles Harte A.M.
Rector and vicar of Castlane | He died 14th day of July 1865 aged 70 years | This tablet was erected by his parishioners | and other sorrowing friends in testimony of their | respect for his faithful ministry during a period | of 17 years, and in affectionate remembrance of his social worth.

Sacred to the memory of | The Rev^d Thomas Maunsell
M.A. who departed this | life the 28rd day of Nov 1846,
in the 69th year of | his age, and 46th of his ministry. |
Upwards of 40 of which he was the Rector of this Parish. In every relation of life he was a steady | consistent Christian constantly relieving the | wants of the poor and afflicted, and as a minister | of Christ's glorious and everlasting Gospel he was | ever a most faithful pastor. As he lived so he | died, in the sure and certain hope of eternal | salvation through the merits of his blessed Redeemer.

Also to the memory of | Eliza his beloved wife died on the 18th of May 1845 | aged 64.

KING'S CO.

Ballyburly Churchyard.

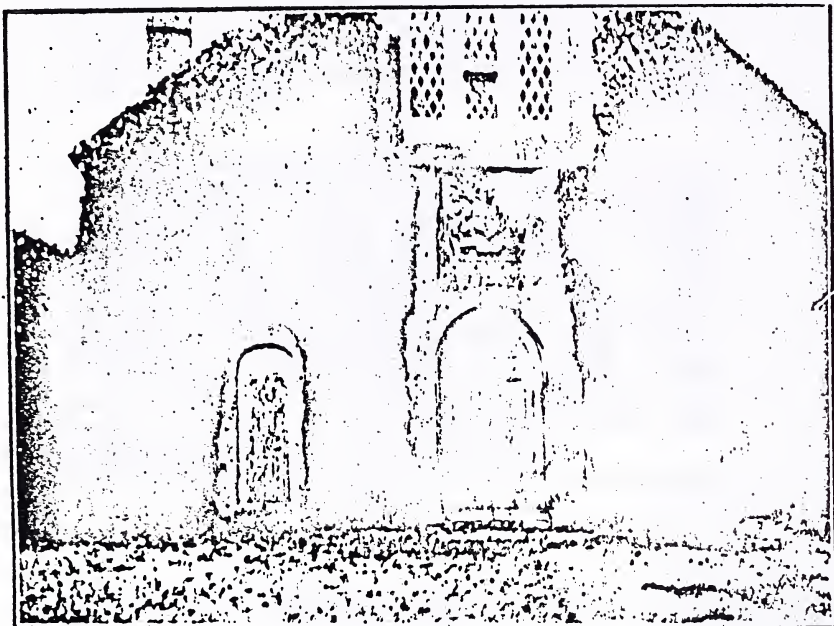

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

‘In this churchyard stands the Protestant parish church, just in rear of Judge Wakely's residence. This church was built by John Wakely in 1686, as stated on a slab over the doorway referred to further on; but it must have been rebuilt then, as Roman Catholics still bury in this churchyard, showing it to have been of greater antiquity than the seventeenth century.

‘Outside and on the left-hand side of the doorway is inserted in the wall a slab 1 foot 2 inches in breadth, and 3 feet 8 inches in length.

to face page 518.]

THE WEST END OF BALLYBURLY CHURCH.

[From a photograph by Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

It bears no inscription. Down its length is cut a quite plain cross, with its head completely encircled by a ring. On either side of the stem is an ornamental device. That on the right is a ladder of six rungs, and on the opposite side is an object resembling a large linked chain. The date of this slab is doubtful, but it does not belong to an early period. The whole is sculptured in relief.

'Over the doorway there is an interesting slab bearing a crest, arms, motto, and an inscription in three lines, all in relief.

'The Crest: A stag's head, full face.

'The Arms are those of Wakely impaling Lambart, viz.:

"A chevron between three crosses crosslet," for Wakely.

"Three narcissuses," for Lambart.

"Lambrequin" falls to either side of the shield.

'The Motto is TOUT • VIENT • DHAULT (recte "Tout vient de haut," i.e., all comes from on high).

'The Inscription runs':—

IOHANNES • WACKLY • EDIFICAVIT • HAS • AEDES • ANNO •
SECUNDO • REGNI • REGIS • IACOBI • SECVNDI •
ANNOQVE • DOMINI • 1686.

'John Wakely's wife was Elizabeth, daughter of the Hon. Oliver Lambart, of Painstown, Co. Meath, brother of the Earl of Cavan, by whom he had eight sons and eight daughters.

'A Wakely monument, dated 1617, inside the church, appeared on p. 22, vol. i, of the JOURNAL.'

'On the south side of the church there are two large slabs, lying side by side, one belonging to the family of Shortt, and the other to that of North. The latter slab required a sod of clay and settle-roots to be removed before its inscription could be read':—

This Tomb was Erected by | Clues Shortt in Memory of | his Father Edward Shortt who | Departed this Life
Jan^r the | 19th 1775. Aged 76 yr^s. Also | his Mother
Jane Shortt who | Departed this Life Dec^{br} y^e | 30th 1772.
Aged 68 yr^s. Also | his Brother John Shortt Depar |

Was I.
And as I am, so will you be,
Prepare for Death, and follow me, Clues Shortt who Depart^d
this Life Dec^{br} y^e 8th 1777.
Aged 80 yr^s.

Here lyeth the Body of | Elizabeth Shortt wife to |
Thomas Shortt who Depar | ted this Life the 8th day
of | August 1777. Aged 70 yr^s.

This Tomb was Erected by | Margarett, Anne, & Grace
North | as a Greatful [sic] Monument to the | Memory of their dear Father | and Mother | Berachah North,
Esq^m Depart^d this Life May 9th 1793. Aged 77 y^r^s | And
Isabella North his wife | Depart^d this Life October 11th
1814 | Aged 78 years.

BallymacWilliam Churchyard.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'This churchyard lies by the side of the public road leading to Road from Edenderry, and three miles to the west of the latter place.

'Considerable remains of the church ruins still stand; but, as far as one can see through the growth of heavy ivy, no windows remain intact. A doorway, with a pointed arch of cut stonework, is situated at the west end of the south wall. The interior of the ruins is choked up with elder bushes.

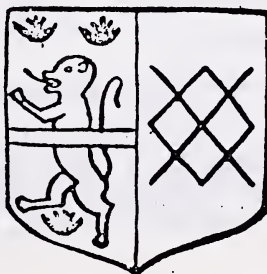

'There are numerous headstones in the churchyard, but the older ones are overgrown with ivy.

'Inside the ruins, at the west end, lies a large slab bearing the following inscription':—

This Monument was Erected by Mrs. Elizabeth Dowell in Memory of her Niece Anne Hogan, who Departed this Life August y^e 17th 1778 Aged 10 y^r Deservedly beloved while in this Life, and Died Universally Lamented. Also in Memory of her Sister Elenor Delamare, who Departed this Life December y^e 25th 1778, Aged 38. Also in Memory of James Delamare, who Departed this life August the 20th 1795, Aged 20 years. Also in Memory of her Father Walter Delamare who departed this Life January the 4th 180—, Aged 61 years. Lord have Mercy on their souls Amen.

'Close to this slab is another, which, though bearing no inscription, has a large coat-of-arms cut in bold relief on it. The shield is surrounded with "lambrequin"; above it is a helmet, surmounted by a falcon, with expanded wings. The shield bears two ats-of-arms. In the dexter half there is a lion rampant between three crescents, an estoile issuant from each, over all a fess. In the sinister half is a fret.

'Mr. G. D. Burtchaell, Athlone Pursuivant-at-Arms, informs me that the arms in the dexter half of the shield are those of Dillon, of Overstown, Co. Meath.'

'By the north wall, inside the ruins, is a large table-tomb, bearing an inscription, which is completely hid under a slab placed face downwards on it.'

Croghan Hill and Old Croghan Churchyard.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'This churchyard, surrounded by a wall, is situated on a shoulder of Croghan Hill, near the summit. It is reached by a steep, narrow boreen on the south side of the hill, till one passes two or three small holdings, when the remainder of the way is up across the open country. Though the churchyard is of great antiquity, there are no inscribed tombstones of a date earlier than the eighteenth century; there are no pillar-stones nor old crosses in it, nor are there any traces of church buildings, though the six-inch Ordnance Survey Map marks down the "site of St. MacCaille's Church," in the north-west corner.

'St. MacCayl (as the name is pronounced) is not remembered in the locality, and there is no well dedicated to him. At the foot of the hill, on the east side, there is a slab-covered well dedicated to St. Patrick, which is resorted to for the cure of the tooth-ache. An Elizabethan Fiant, in 1550, mentions "the Rectory of St. Patrick of Crohan in the Diocese of Kildare."

'Owing to the steepness of the ascent, the carrying of a corpse on a bearer is no easy work; and the conveyance of slabs and headstones to the graves must be a work of great difficulty.

'The oldest inscription that I could discover only dates from 1721; it occurs on a flat slab in the middle of the burial-ground, the inscription on which reads':—

HERE LIETH THE
BODY OF ROW=_N
LAND FLANNAGA
GEN^T WHO DEPAR
TED THIS LIFE TH^K
11TH DAY OF MAY IN
THE 28RD YEARE
OF HIS AGE 1721.

Old Croghan (formerly Castletown Croghan.)

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'On this townland, lying to the south-west of the hill, stand portions of the castle which was granted to Sir Thomas Moore, of Mellifont, in 1574. Between them and the public road is what was probably the private church of the castle, now a featureless ruin, of which a windowless west gable-end, surmounted by a ruined belfry, still stands, with a considerable portion of the north wall, and a widely gapped east end; the south wall is down, and three old ash trees have sprung up on the foundations in the gapped portions. With the exception of a table-tomb, there is not a trace of any interments in or around the ruins, which are unenclosed. The table-tomb, now nearly prostrate, is a short distance to the south of the ruins; the inscription on it, which is now very faint, reads':—

The burial ground of Joseph Dames of Croghan, who died March the 4th
1807 aged—4 years.

The Saratfieldstown Wayside Cross, Parish of Moore Church,

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'The existence of this interesting monument was first brought to my notice in 1908, when I discovered a rubbing of the inscription on the cross among the documents belonging to the Association which were handed over to me by the late Colonel P. D. Vigors, when he resigned the Editorship of the JOURNAL. The rubbing, however, was quite useless, as it was taken on thick, white paper, and no attempt had been made to pencil in the shape of the letters from the originals; the neglect to do so often causes a rubbing to be a failure. During the months of April in 1904 and 1905 I paid three or four visits to this cross, and the results of my rubbings are here reproduced. In order to make the inscription clearer to the eye, I have darkened the back-ground, as the lettering is incised. As there is no date recorded in the inscription, a guess has to be made as to what period it belongs to, and, as will be explained further on, this may be fixed at the end of the fifteenth century.

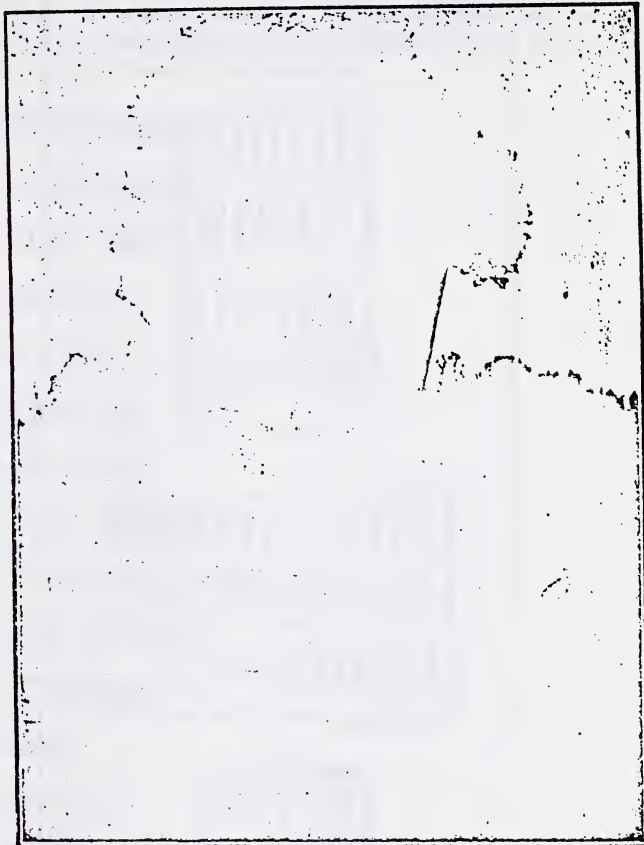

'The cross is situated in a field close to the public road from Drogheda to Dublin, and four and a-half miles from the former. The existing remains consist of a portion of the shaft, which is inserted in a square slab resting on a platform composed of three steps of rough mason-work. Both the shaft and the socketed base bear inscriptions.

'The Shaft, in its present fractured state, is $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet high, with sides measuring 19 inches and 15 inches. In the lower part of all the four sides are inscriptions in three or four lines. Above the inscription on the west side is a male figure, and, on the east side, a female figure, probably representing the two individuals (Christopher Barnewall and Elizabeth Plunkett) named in the inscription, as they represent neither ecclesiastics nor saints, such as appear on the north and south sides.

The Slab, in which the shaft is inserted, measures 94 inches by 29 inches, and in thickness 8 inches. It has a bevelled edge all round. On this bevelled portion is cut a continuation of the inscription on the shaft.

'The Inscription is in deeply incised "black-letter," or Gothic style of lettering. It commences on the west side of the shaft, continues on the south, east, and north sides respectively, and then restarts on the west side of the slab, finishing up on the north.

side. The edges of the shaft are also bevelled, and at the north-west corner there are traces of letters running up the shaft; but here, unfortunately, the inscription is quite undecipherable.

'Through the kind assistance of our member, the Rev. William Canon Carrigan, P.P., the inscription has been deciphered and translated. This is all the more satisfactory, as I was informed by a man living in a house close to the Cross that many a one had attempted to read the inscription, but all had given it up in despair. Father Carrigan's reading is as follows':—

TRANSLATION.

Octavian, archbishop, Primate of All Ireland, has granted an indulgence of thirty days, in perpetuity, to every one, truly contrite, as often as they shall devoutly say an Our Father and Hail Mary for the souls of Sir Christopher Barnewall Kt. and Elizabeth Plunkett and of all the faithful departed.

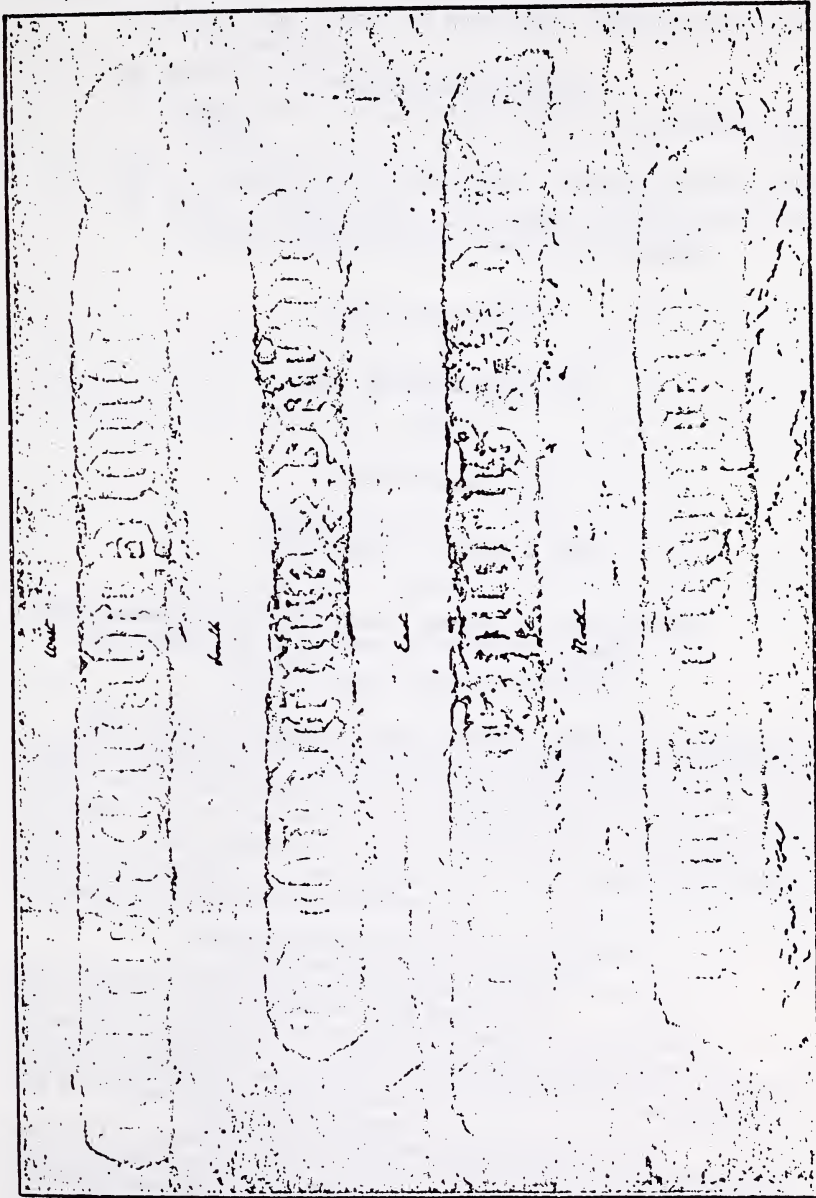

‘Octavian de Palatio, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland, was consecrated Archbishop in 1480, and died at a very advanced age in June, 1519; he was buried in St. Peter’s Church in Drogheda. A memoir of him by Dr. Reeves appeared in the “Journal of the Royal Historical and Archæological Association of Ireland” (now the R.S.A.Ire.) for the year 1875 (consecutive volume, No. XIII).

‘Another portion of this wayside cross lies in the garden of a house, close by, belonging to a man named O’Brien; this garden occupies a portion of the site of the former chapel of Keenoge. This piece of the cross is richly carved with foliage designs in high relief; below them, on one face, appears the crucifixion, with the Blessed Virgin Mary and St. John; on the other face is the Blessed Virgin and Child. At one of the sides is St. Lawrence, holding a gridiron; and on the opposite side is St. Matthew, holding a staff in one hand, while slung from his shoulder is a satchel.

‘Sir Christopher Barnewall, 2nd Baron of Trimblestown, was the son of Robert, 1st Baron (by his wife Anne le Brune), who was the second son of Sir Christopher Barnewall, Kt., of Crickstown, in the County Meath, Chief Justice of the King’s Bench.

‘Sir Christopher, the 2nd Baron, was in possession of the title in 1488, in which year he was granted a pardon from Henry VII for supporting the pretender to the throne—Lambert Simnel. He was present under the Lord Deputy, the Earl of Kildare, at the famous battle of Knockdoe in the County Galway, which was fought on the 19th August, 1504. The date of Sir Christopher’s death is not recorded; but as his son and heir, John Barnewall, is recorded in a Memoranda Roll of 21 Henry VII, as being Lord of Trimblestown in 1505, his death must have occurred about this time. By his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Plunkett, Kt., of Rathmore, County Meath, he had two sons and three daughters, viz. :—

1. John, 2nd Justice of the King's Bench, 8rd Baron of Trimlestown.
2. Robert, of Roestown, County Meath.
1. Ismay, who married William Bathe of Rathfeigh, County Meath.
2. . . ., married John Netterville, of Dowth, County Meath.
3. Alison, married Roger Barnewall, of Fieldstown, County Meath, ancestor of the Viscounts Kingsland.

Dunamase, the Church near the Rock of Dunamase, Parish of Dysart Enos.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'This little Protestant church stands close to the base of the Rock of Dunamase, and was erected in 1845 to replace that at Dysart Enos, which stood about one and a-half miles to the south-west of the Rock. A few table-tombs, &c., occupy the east end of the church-yard; the only monument inside the church is a mural slab built into the west wall; it was removed from the Dysart Enos Church, and bears the following inscription' :—

Near this place are deposited the remains of WILLIAM PERCIVAL, of STRADBALLY, late a Captain in His Majesty's 103rd Regiment of Foot, who departed this life the 12th day of September 1793, aged 38 years.
Those who knew him well contemplate with tender regret this Stone designed to commemorate the honourable Integrity of his dealings, his frank and undesigned temper, his conjugal and parental affection, his ardent and unremitting desire of relieving the wants and promoting the happiness of his Fellow Creatures.

Nor will this memorial be deemed uninstrusive by such as meet here for God's service, whilst it records that the amiable and useful virtues which distinguished his Character flowed from a lively Faith in that Gospel, to participate in the benefits of which, they are now assembled.

'On a tablet over the church entrance':—

'In June, 1909, this little church was struck by lightning from east to west; many of the slates were dislodged, and the small belfry at the top of the west gable was destroyed.'

Killeslin Churchyard.

'A few of the older inscriptions from this churchyard have appeared on pages 478 and 479, vol. i, of the JOURNAL. In the inscription on the top of page 479, the "Bryan Kugan" should read "Bryan Hogan." A flat slab lying in the east end of the church ruins bears the following inscription':—

Here lieth the Body of M^r Margaret Rose alias Hutchison who Dep^d this life the 8th Day of July 17 . . . * in the . . .
year of her age. Also here lieth the Bodies of John Hutchison and Mary Hutchison his wife, who departed this life the 16th and 18th of March 1763, John aged 82 years and Mary 72 years. Also his son Michael Hutchinson [sic] who departed this life the 7th of June 1829.
Aged 74 years. May he rest in Peace Amen.
Also his dearly beloved wife M^r Mary
Hutchinson who dep^d this life Dec^r
27th 1837 Aged 72 years.

'Placed up against the west wall of the church ruins, on the outside, is a granite headstone. As the inscription faces the west, it must mark a priest's grave. The inscription is so much obliterated that all that can with great difficulty be made out is':—

'On other monuments':—

Sacred to the memory of Richard Pennefather Esq. D.L. and Lieut. Col. of the Tipperary Regiment of Militia, eldest son of the Hon. Baron Pennefather. Born 3 September 1806, married 26 July 1836 to the Lady Emily G. A. Butler. Died 14 July 1849.

A mother's love consecrates this tribute to the memory of Lieut. Col. Edmond Meysey Wigley Greswold, of Malvern Hall, in Warwickshire, and Ullesthorpe in Leicestershire, commanding the Enniskillen Dragoons, by whom a monument is erected to him in the church of his native place and family residence in Worcestershire. The deep regret with which his honoured remains were attended in this spot by his regiment, and by the military of the surrounding district, and the grief with which the intelligence of his death was received in his native land are the best testimonies of the character he bore with him to his early grave. He died January 6th 1834, aged xxxiv.

THE CHIMNEY-PIECE BEARING THE BUTLER COAT-OF-ARMS, 1565.

Formerly in the Elizabethan addition to Carrick-on-Suir Castle, and now in Kilkenny Castle.

[From a photograph by Laurence, Dublin.]

Sacred to the memory of Lieut. and Adjutant Charles Hickman, late of the 7th or Princess Royal's Regiment of Dragoon Guards, and formerly the 15th or King's Hussars, in which distinguished corps he served during the long period of 24 years. He was present at the affair of Taghun, and all the actions in which this regiment was engaged during the Peninsular War, as also at Waterloo. He was appointed Adjutant of the 7th Dragoon Guards in 1824, which situation he filled for 10 years with advantage to the regiment and credit and honour to himself. He died at Cahir Barracks 7 May 1834, aetat 55 having devoted 88 to his country's service. This tablet is erected by his brother officers of the 7th Dragoon Guards in testimony of the high opinion they entertained of his merits as a gallant soldier and a zealous officer.

Carrick-on-Suir Castle Chimney-piece.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

In 1565 an Elizabethan mansion was built by Thomas Butler, 10th Earl of Ormonde, on to the ancient double-keeled castle of Carrick-on-Suir (originally called Carrick-mac-Griffin, from its Geraldine owner in the twelfth century). Most of the ceilings and walls are ornamented with designs in stucco work, the most common being medallions, containing the bust of Thomas, the 10th Earl, with the initials T. O.; the bust of Queen Elizabeth, with the initials E. R.; the Royal Arms, in a diamond-shaped panel, quartered, viz., 1 and 4, three fleurs-de-lis, and 2 and 3, three lions, with a lion and a dragon as supporters; the Butler arms on a shield, surrounded by a garter bearing the family motto, "Comme je trouve" (As I find); the arms are quartered, viz. :—

1. A chief indented (Butler).
2. Three covered cups (Butler).
3. A lion rampant, on a chief a swan between two annulets (? the arms of the Earldom of Carrick*).
4. Ermine, a saltire (FitzGerald of Munster; the Earl's mother was Lady Joan, d. of James, 11th Earl of Desmond).

* Other panels contain either human figures (one with JUSTITIA over it) or ornamental designs; and in one room on walls and ceilings frequently occurs the sentence,

PLVES • PENSE
QVE • É • DERE ;

* From information supplied by Mr. G. D. Burchoell, Athlone Pursuivant of Arms.

Mr. J. R. Garstin is of the opinion that this means substantially, "Thought is better than talk," or "Think rather than talk."

'The ceilings, walls, and floors are now (1902) in an unsafe condition, and this extremely interesting specimen of Elizabethan stucco-work has been allowed in recent years to fall into a state of rack and ruin.

'In the large room, on the first floor, there is (or was) a wide fire-place, with a tall, handsome chimney-piece* of limestone, on which are carved in relief, in large size, the Earl of Ormonde's crest and coat-of-arms in six divisions, with two male Griffins collared and chained as supporters; "mantling" or "lambrequin" falls on either side; and "the Carrick Knot" appears four times, one in each of the top corners, and one between each of the Griffin's hind legs.

'The crest here shown is:—Out of wreath or torse round a helmet a plume of five ostrich feathers, from which issues a falcon with wings expanded.†

'The arms in six compartments are:—

'1 and 5. A chief indented.

'2 and 6. Three covered cups.

'3 and 4. Ermine, a saltire.

'It is strange that "the earldom of Carrick" arms shown quartered with the Earl's arms in the stucco-work mentioned above are not shown on the chimney-piece. Above and below the arms are inscriptions cut in the peculiar Roman capitals of the sixteenth century.

'The upper inscription, in one line, runs thus':—

ANNO · DNI · 1565 · ANNO · REGNI · REGINE · ELIZABETH · SEPTIMO

'The lower inscription, in two lines, continues on':—

THOMAS · BVTLER · MILES · VICECOMES · DE ·
TVRLES · COMES · ORMONIE · ET · OSSORIE · DÑS ·
LIBE | RTATIS · SEV · REGALITATIS · COMITATVS ·
TIPPARIE · AC · DÑS · THESA VRAR · REGNI · HIBNE · ME · FIERI · FECIT.‡

* This was removed in 1908, and inserted in the dining-room of Kilkenny Castle.

† The present crest of the family shows the five ostrich feathers set in a ducal coronet.

‡ In the word TIPPARIE, the second P has a stroke through its perpendicular portion, denoting a contraction for PER; and the large comma-like contraction symbol stands for ivs, in THESA VRAR.

I.e., In the year of our Lord 1565, in the 7th year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, Sir Thomas Butler, Knight, Viscount of Thurles, Earl of Ormonde and Ossory, Lord of the Liberty or Regality of the County of Tipperary, and Lord Treasurer of the Kingdom of Ireland, caused me to be made.

'Thomas, known as "Thomas duff" (the dark), and as "the Black Earl," died without surviving male issue, at Carrick-on-Suir, on the 22nd November, 1614, and was buried in St. Canice's Cathedral, Kilkenny, but his effigied tomb, executed by Stone, a London sculptor, is now totally destroyed.

Some of the letters in the following inscription are conjoined ; they are cut in raised Roman capitals :—

'Below this inscription there is a large coat-of-arms of the Swan family, but no motto, viz.:—

'Arms:—A chevron between three swans.

'Crest:—A demi talbot rampant.

'These, according to Burke's "General Armory," are identical with those of the family of Swan, of Kilrish, Co. Dublin, whose motto is—"Spero meliora."'

CO. WATERFORD.
Dungarvan, St. Mary's Churchyard.

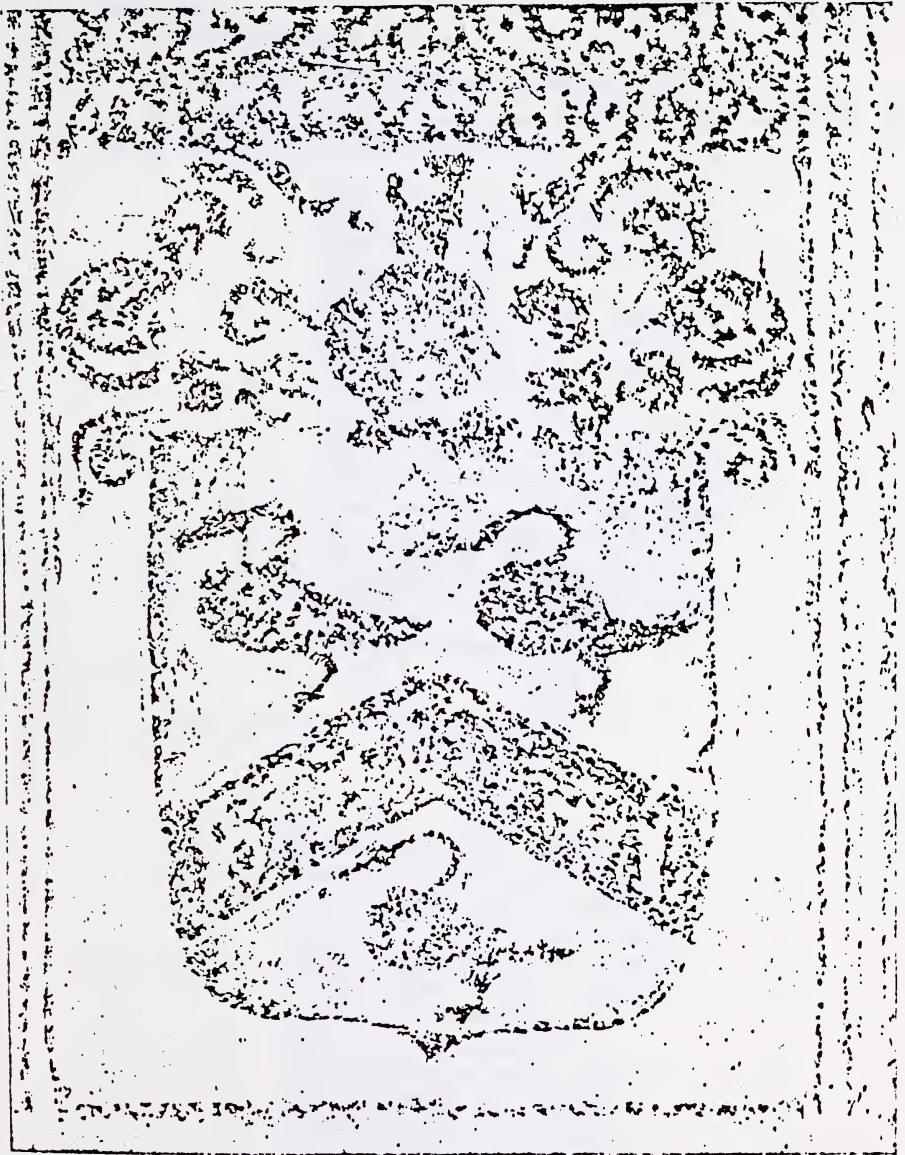

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'A Protestant church stands in this place, and is surrounded by a large burial-ground. Many flat slabs and altar-tombs have their inscriptions illegible, as the nature of the local stone is to weather-wear badly.

'The west gable is all that is left standing of the ancient building; and from the five very peculiar circular apertures (two above and three below) in it, it is known as "The Holed Gable." The round holes on the outside are of cut stone; internally they have a wide circular splay. This gable stands to the west of the church.

*Farlough, Parish of Tullyniskan.

†This date is possibly 1679, but that given above appears to so read in a rather blurred rubbing.

'As shown in the rubbing of the Coats-of-Arms, the dexter Coat is very puzzling; but the motto: "Per crucem ad coronam" gives a clue, as it is the motto of the Power family. Mr. G. D. Burtchaell, Athlone Pursuivant of Arms, considers that the quartered coat in the dexter half of the shield is a mixture of arms of two branches of the Power family. The original arms of this family is: "Argent, a chief indented sable"; one branch of the family added three lions rampant on to the "chief," and another branch added three escallop shells on to the "chief"; on the rubbing the lions and escallop shells alone are shown, quartered, forming a very peculiar and incorrect representation of the Power arms. The cross in the middle of them is inexplicable. The O'Shee arms are: "Per bend indented azure and or, two fleurs-de-lis counterchanged."

'Beneath a beech tree at the east end of the ruins lie a couple of badly fractured slabs (as if damaged by fallen masonry), which have their inscriptions facing the west. It took much time to clean and decipher the inscriptions, which are lightly incised, as they were covered by a coating of moss which was very troublesome to remove. The first slab is smashed into four, and the second into six pieces;

at the top of both of them is cut in relief a large I H S; and below it a chalice.

'The inscriptions read':—

Kilbride Churchyard.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'The ruins of this church are featureless and much ivy-clad. Outside, at the west end, there are four large box-tombs, belonging to the family of North, of Kilbride. They belong to the nineteenth century. The earliest of them is dated 1804.

* Now Meedin.

'In the burial-ground there are no monuments of any interest. The oldest inscriptions appear to be the two given below.

'A small headstone at the west end, inside the ruins':—

I. H. S

Here Lyeth the Body | of William Kenney wh^o | died
 June [sic] y^e 21 1769 Age^d | 76 years. Also his wife |
 Margret [sic] Kenny died | June y^e 16 1768 Aged |

'On a headstone at the south side of the burial-ground':—

 The Body of bridget groom who departed this Life
 Aug^t y^e 15th 1775 Aged 57 year^s
 Also two of her sons Bryan
 [Rest buried.]

'As the name Kilbride implies, Saint Brigid is the Patron Saint of this place. A short distance from the churchyard, to the north, is a well, marked on the 6-inch Ordnance Survey Map, as "Toberbreegia" (i.e., St. Brigid's Well).'

Rathduff Churchyard, Parish of Moylisker,

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

This little burial-ground is of small size, and contains no ruins of a church. There are no tombstones of any interest; the earliest inscription appears to be the following.

'On a table-tomb in the south-west corner':—

Here lieth the Body of Sarah Cony, daughter of Thomas Cony, who departed this Life June the 10th 1777
 Aged 17 years & 4 months
 Life is a Jest, and all things in it;
 I thought so once, but now know it.
 Charles Francis Fecitd [sic].

'This unusual verse also occurs on the tombstone of the Rev. Andrew McCormack, P.P., in Lady's Island Churchyard, Co. Wexford, given in this number of the JOURNAL.

Bannow Church Ruins.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'The ruins of Bannow Church consist of nave and chancel. The chancel is now inaccessible; the side windows are built up, and a spiked iron railing, with a padlocked gate, extends across the chancel arch, which is a handsome, wide, round one, faced with cut stone-work of a light brown sandstone. Inside the chancel are some box-tombs belonging to the Boyeses of Bannow and the Carrs of Graigue.

'The east window is pointed arched, and judging by the remains of cut stone-work, it was originally a handsome erection. In the north-east corner of the nave lies a fourteenth-century slab, wider at the head than at the foot, bearing a foliated cross, with the busts of a man and his wife under a canopy at the upper end. Inscriptions run parallel with, and on both sides of, the shaft of the cross. It was cut in "the black-letter," with a capital Lombardic B to the Hic tacet, with which the inscription commences. The latter is now illegible; but when read by the Rev. James Graves in 1849, the names of John Colfer and his wife Anne Siggin could be deciphered.* A drawing of this slab, from Du Noyer's sketches in the Royal Irish Academy, is given on p. 889 in vol. i of our JOURNAL.

'In the opposite corner of the nave is a stone coffin, with its lid, broken into four or five fragments, lying near. The lid bears no inscription, but was ornamented with a cross with trefoil terminals.

'A plain holy-water trough lies on the ground inside at the doorway in the south wall of the nave. There are the remains of a vaulted porch to this southern entrance.

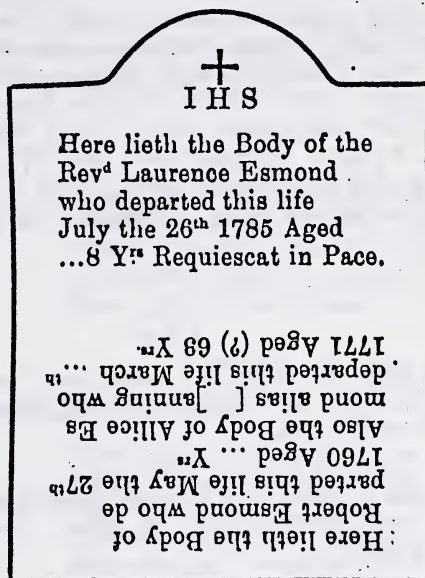

'Outside the church ruins, and attached to them on the north side, is an over-ground vaulted building, resembling a sepulchral vault, but it contains no coffins. Near by is a ball court; a portion of the north wall of the ruins is cemented smooth to serve that purpose.

'A font, handsomely sculptured, is said to have been removed, many years ago, from this church, to the chapel at Carrick near by, where it is used at the present time.

'Bannow church was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary; a blessed well, called "Our Lady's Well," at which "patterns" were held on the 15th of August, lies a short distance off to the south-east of the ruins.

* See the "Journal of the Kilkenny Archæological Society," vol. i, page 194 (now the "Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland").

'Inside the nave there is a flat slab, fashioned like a headstone at one end; it bears two inscriptions, running in opposite directions, both of them now hard to decipher. Commencing at the upper end, they read:—

'The missing letter in the surname, in the lower inscription, is possibly an M; the upright stroke at the end of the letter alone is visible.

'The tombstones in the burial-ground, of which there is none on the north side of the church ruins, are not earlier than the eighteenth century.

'One flat slab, on the south side, bears the following inscription, facing the west':—

I.H.S.

Here lieth the Body of
the Rev.d. Andrew Corish,
P.P. of Kilmore,
who departed this life Nov.r. 7th 1807,
Aged 55 years.

'Near this slab is a headstone to the family of Corish of Ballyowen.'

Lady's Island.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

‘This island, in an inlet of the sea in South County Wexford, is joined to the mainland by a tigher or causeway, guarded by a now leaning tower at the island end of it, behind which is a square castle, and behind that again the churchyard dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary, whose Blessed Well is situated on the mainland. Only the west gable end, surmounted by a double belfry, is now standing of the old church.

'Near the entrance gate to the burial-ground there are two box-tombs side by side.

'On one of them there are two short inscriptions running in opposite directions, one at the head and the other at the foot of the slab. The one facing the west reads':—

I.H.S.

Here lieth the Body of Rev^d Iohn
Stafford who was Pastor of this Island, departed this life the 18th of Decb^r 1806 aged 8- years the Lord have Mercy on his Soul Amen.

The other inscription runs':—

Here lieth the Body of Iames
Stafford departed Octob^r 1781
Aged
And also the Body of Mary Staff^d
Alias Murphy Departed April
the — 1784 aged — Requie
scant in pace Amen.

'These inscriptions were very difficult to decipher.'

'The other box-tomb, alongside the above, is of a bad quality, which makes the inscription quite illegible in places. A text, in two lines, commences the inscription, but it cannot be identified in the Douay Bible at the reference given on the slab; as far as can be deciphered the inscription reads':—

. eath of . . . clo . . . Be Mee . . . m
. . . llar . . . Mathew 11th chapter 29th v(erse)
Here Lyeth the Body of Mary Deve reux alias——— who Departed years. The Lord have mercy on her Soul.

Also the Body of M^r Edward De vereux (late) of Sallystown who departed this life the — of March 1784 Aged 56 years.

'On a flat slab, much sunk in the ground, the inscription on which faces the west':—

I H S

Here Lieth the Body of
The Rev^d Andrew M^c
Cormack Dep^d 81st
May 1781 Aged 58 years

MAY THE LORD HAVE MERCY ON HIS SOUL AMEN.

The World is A jest, as all things
Shew it; I thought so once, But

'The peculiar verse in this inscription also appears on the Cony table-tomb in the Rathduff Churchyard, Co. Westmeath, given in this number of the JOURNAL.'

Baltinglass Abbey Burial-ground.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'On a table-tomb, within the Abbey walls':—

This Stone has been erected to the Memory of the Rev^d Rob^t Carter by the Parishioners of Baltinglass in token of Gratitude for the Kindness they Experienced from him as their Rector for the Period of 18 years. He departed this life the 6th day of October 1806
Aged 49 years.

'On a table-tomb':—

Erected by the R^t Hon^{ble}
Benjamin, Earl of Aldborough, in Memory of John Handcock who lived in his service during the space of 85 years a just and faithful servant,
who departed this life the 21st June 1825
with a hope of Meeting a good Reward
thro' the Merits of his Redeemer,

'A large circular granite font, having no outlet for the water, and unsculptured round the sides, is placed at the base at one of the pillars near the modern church tower of the Abbey; it was many years ago dug up on the north side of the burial-ground, and removed to the Rector's garden, where it remained till the late Rector (the Rev. John Usher) had it placed in its present position in 1905.

'A large displaced headstone, now lying flat, on the north-east side of the burial-ground, bears the following inscription':—

I H S

This Stone was Erected by Bryan
Farrell in Memory of his wife Mary Farrel who departed this Life the 7th of March 1791. Aged 40 years.
May the Lord have Mercy on her Soul
Amen.

Dunlavin, the R. C. Church.

[From Lord Walter FitzGerald.]

'Just inside the gateway, and on the right-hand side, there is built into the wall a large ornamental limestone slab, bearing the following inscription, in an oval frame':—

THE CATHOLICKS of this PARISH in gratefull acknowledgement to LADY TYNTE CALDWELL and MISS ELIZA. H. TYNTE for their liberal Donation of this Chapel Ground,
and that of its precincts,
Have Erected this Stone as a perpetual monument
of their Munificence.
ANNO DOMINI 1815

'Before this date, as far as I could ascertain, a building at Morginstown served as a chapel.

'The ladies mentioned on this slab are Hannah, daughter of Morley Pendred-Saunders, of Saunders Grove, County Wicklow, who married, first, Sir James Stratford Tynte, Baronet,* of Tynte Park, County Wicklow, who died in 1785; and, secondly, FitzMaurice Caldwell, second son of Sir James Caldwell, Bart., of Castle Caldwell, in the County Fermanagh.

'The Miss Elizabeth Tynte, named on the stone, was one of her daughters who died unmarried on the 8rd of August, 1816; the Christian name, "Eliza. H.," appears to be the sculptor's error for "Elizabeth."

Hollywood Churchyard.

'Hollywood is dedicated to St. Kevin (8rd June), and, in a rocky glen close to the church, his Cave, Chair, and Bed are pointed out; his Blessed Well is not marked down on the old six-inch Ordnance Survey Map, but it is situated in a field near, and to the north of the church.

'On p. 511, vol. v, of the JOURNAL, the inscription on a small granite cross at the west side of the burial-ground has been given; the date on it, which is very difficult to decipher, is incorrectly given, and should read 1855, thus':—

85

'There are many similar little crosses in the burial-ground at Hollywood Chapel, also bearing initials and dates, but they all belong to the early nineteenth century.

'On a headstone standing to the south of the church is inscribed':—

I.H.S.

This Stone was Erected | By John Walsh in memory | of his Father Richard Walsh | who departed this Life |
the 21st day of June in the | year of our Lord God 1769 |
Aged 74 years, with 2 of his | Brothers, 2 of his Sisters and 8 | of his children.

May the Lord Be Gud [sic] &

[Remainder buried.]

* Sir James S. Tynte was created a Baronet, but the honour died with him on his death without surviving male issue.

Under a holly-bush, to the south-east of the church, are a couple of flat slabs, whose inscriptions are not easy to read; they run thus':—

This stone was Erected by Mr Anthony Allen in Memory of his wife M^{rs} Elizabeth Allen alias Ubank who departed this life June the (?) 13th 1803 Aged (?) 86 years Also the Body of Miss Eliza Allen daughter of the Above named who departed this life the 29th day of Sept^r 1803 Aged three months and twenty days.

Also the Body of the Above named ANTHONY ALLEN who departed this life the 20th July 1810 Aged 67 years.
He lived beloved and died regretted.

Here Lieth the Body of Thomas Allen who Departed this Life November the 26th 1809 Aged 70 years.
